

Arianna Conti

No proof that there are no memory leaks. There probably is because the zap function only calls pop() which does not delete anything it only dereferences the values. The board state pointers aren't being deleted.